Bob is the acronym (and personality) we use for Best of Blogs. However, these selections of blog listings are not meant to be the penultimate curatorial choice of exemplary blog writings. Instead Bob is simply a way for us to easily categorize our more casual selection of what we find interesting from other people's photography blogs. Bob then is responsible for posts covering the goings on of the greater photographic blogosphere. You can think of these selections as something of a digest: links to blogs and articles from around the internet that the photo-eye staff has found particularly interesting, disturbing, noteworthy, funny, exciting and/or otherwise worthwhile. We hope you enjoy them!

If you know of a post or article of particular interest and want to let Bob know, you can direct your email to bob@photoeye.com.
